A Daytime Adventure

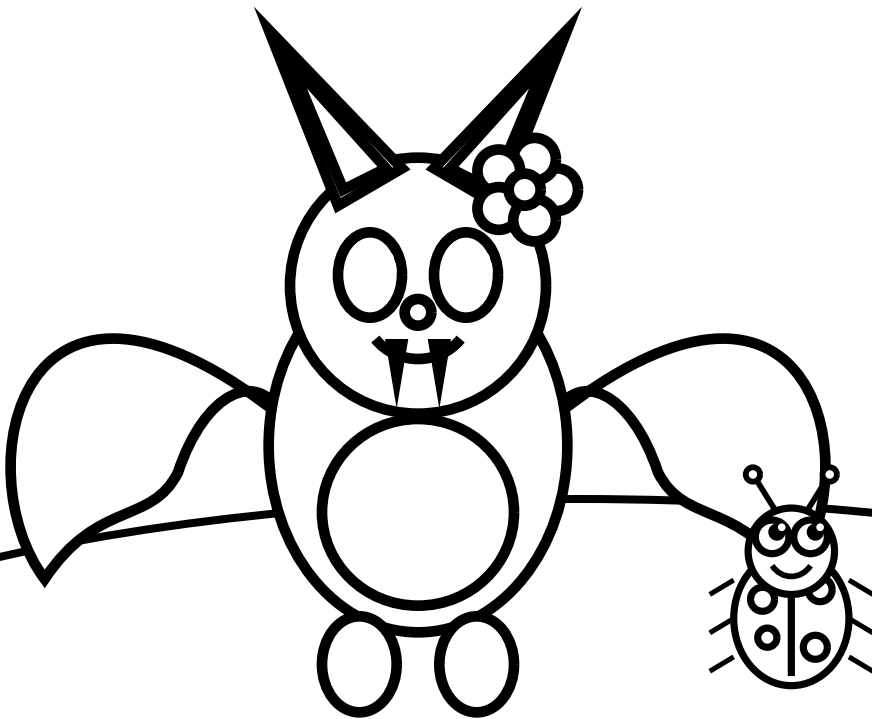

A Story of Friendship Between Day and Night

When the moon shines bright and stars come out to play,
Violet the bat wakes up — it's her time of day!
She stretches her wings of lilac and deep plum,
And wonders what adventures the nighttime will become.

As sunrise paints the sky in orange and gold,
Violet yawns wide — she's feeling quite old!
But Lainey the ladybug calls, 'Don't sleep yet!
Today is a day you will never forget!'

Violet tries hard to keep her eyes wide,
With Lainey the ladybug right by her side.
'Come on!' Lainey cheers, 'The world is so bright!'
But Violet just yawns — she's not used to the light.

'Look at the fountain!' Lainey says with glee,
'The splashing cold water will wake you — you'll see!'
The drops tickle Violet's fuzzy bat nose,
And she giggles out loud from her ears to her toes!

But soon Violet's eyelids start getting so heavy,
She sits by the fountain — she's not feeling ready.
Lainey thinks fast, 'I know what we need!'
'An adventure so fun, it will wake you, indeed!'

They walk down the path to a café so sweet,
With tables outside and a warm little seat.
'Some cocoa will help you stay up!' Lainey cries,
As Violet blinks hard with her big purple eyes.

They sip their warm cocoa with marshmallows tall,
Lainey's cup is so tiny, and Violet's not small!
The chocolate is yummy, the whipped cream is nice,
Violet feels better — she's perking up twice!

With tummies all warm and big smiles on their faces,
They head off together to find brand-new places.
'The playground is next!' Lainey buzzes with cheer,
'The swings and the slide — the best fun is near!'

Violet climbs up to the top of the slide,
Her little wings flutter with joy and with pride!
She zooms to the bottom with wind in her fur,
And Lainey claps all of her legs with a whirl!

They pump on the swings, flying higher and higher,
Violet's wings spread — she could never get tire-r!
Lainey swings too, though she's tiny and light,
Two best friends together — oh, what a sight!

But playing so hard makes a bat very sleepy,
Violet's eyes close — things are getting all dreamy.
She plops on a bench with a yawn oh-so-wide,
While Lainey thinks quick of more things they can ride!

They find a sweet pond full of ducks in a row,
Who quack and say hi as they waddle and go.
Violet giggles and splashes her toes in the cool,
'This pond,' Lainey laughs, 'is our own little pool!'

A bandstand plays music — a jolly bright tune!
They twirl on the stage underneath the big moon...
Wait, no — it's the sun! Violet laughs at her goof,
And dances with Lainey right under the roof!

'Wake up, Violet! Look at this fountain so grand!'
Lainey flies circles and takes Violet's hand.
The water shoots up in a sparkle of blue,
And Violet giggles, 'That woke me — it's true!'

Through gardens of roses and daisies they roam,
Each petal and leaf feels like it's their own home.
The flowers smell sweet in the warm afternoon,
But Violet starts humming a soft sleepy tune...

Violet sways left, then she sways to the right,
Her wings droop like blankets pulled snug and pulled tight.
Lainey flies close and taps Violet's cheek,
'Just one more adventure before you can sleep!'

An ice cream cart sparkles with colors galore,
Violet picks purple — her favorite, for sure!
Lainey gets strawberry, so tiny and red,
'Best day ever!' both of the best friends have said.

'One more little treat to keep your eyes bright!'
Lainey finds juice that's a pure sweet delight.
Berry and mango with honey on top,
Violet sips slowly — she just cannot stop!

The afternoon sun makes things warm and so cozy,
Violet's sweet cheeks are all purple and rosy.
She stumbles and mumbles, 'I'm so very tired...'
Lainey knows now — a nap is required.

'I found it!' says Lainey, 'The perfect green bed!'
A big, soft, and wide leaf for Violet's sleepy head.
It's shady and cool underneath the big tree,
'Now rest, my dear friend — nap as long as can be.'

Violet curls up on the leaf soft and green,
The sweetest, most peaceful nap you've ever seen.
Lainey sits close, humming songs oh-so-light,
Guarding her friend until day turns to night.
